Jimmy Moore unveils two new stamps, at the Stennis Space Center, commemorating the Apollo 11 landing on the moon. Wednesday marked the 25th anniversary of the event.

Bay St. Louis postmaster has part in commemoration

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

Our nation celebrated the 25th anniversary of the first manned moon landing on Wednesday. To commemorate the anniversary of this event, the United States Postal Service unveiled two new stamps depicting the first walk on the moon, at John C. Stennis Space Center.

Bay St. Louis Postmaster Jimmy Moore unveiled the new stamps in the auditorium of the visitor's center, at Stennis.

Stennis and the Bay St. Louis post office were among the 10 locations across the nation where the stamp could be purchased on that day.

"The moon landing remains one of the best examples of what happens when all of America pulls together towards a common goal," Moore said. "The new moon landing stamps were designed to capture the drama of a chapter in American history that we can all look back on with great pride."

One of the stamps is a 29-cent commemorative and the other is a $9.95 express mail stamp. Artwork for the stamps was created by the father and son team of Paul and Chris Calle.

Both new stamps showcase the same view of an astronaut on the moon's surface. The $9.95 stamps give a larger view of the scene, showing a second astronaut as well as the Apollo 11 landing module.

Stennis Space Center played a major roll in the events that took place on July 20, 1969 by testing the booster rockets used to launch the astronauts into space.

Today, Stennis tests the main engines that power the space shuttle into earth orbit.

Magic lodge plans aired

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Casino Magic hopes to have 200 units of lodge accommodations open for business by the Christmas holiday season.

But a hoped-for speedy approval of the site plans by Bay St. Louis city officials didn't materialize for the project this week.

Monday, Mayor Eddie Favre told a workshop session of City Council the site plans could be endorsed directly by council, skipping a review by the Planning and Zoning Commission. He and commission chairman Les Fillingame said casino officials are anxious to expedite the process, so the facilities can get under construction.

Three members of council balked at the idea of varying from the normal approval process set out in the recently-enacted site plan review ordinance, however.

Fillingame is expected to show the plans to the commission before the matter goes to a special meeting of Council for action next Tuesday.

He said some details required in the site plan review stage, such as location of a proposed swimming pool, haven't been finalized. But, Fillingame added, the project could move forward subject to action on those items later.

Councilman Tad Black questioned whether the city's fire department is equipped and trained to deal with emergencies in four-story buildings.

Favre said the consensus among fire officials is that construction code requirements are so stringent that such fires generally are extinguished inside, rather than from the exterior.

Rose said the buildings would meet all requirements in the Southern Building Code, including sprinkler systems and fire rated stairwells.

Councilmen agreed, however, the city needs to think about beefing up its equipment to deal with fires in multi-story buildings, including some existing apartment structures.

The $6 million lodge is planned for construction on a tract north of Felicita Street and west of Engman Avenue, including two, four-story buildings with 100 units each.

J.B. Rose, the casino's hotel project director, said original plans to put the structures south of Felicita had changed after officials realized that property would require pilings.

The idea of a casino lodge surfaced at a recent council meeting where officials aired detailed plans for construction of a 16-story hotel. Although pilings for the hotel are in the ground, officials say completion of that facility isn't expected until the end of 1995.

Meanwhile, the casino is anxious to have on-site accommodations for the patrons flown or

Reporter's shooting a murky matter

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

Why? Why did it have to happen? Why was a young, talented woman shot as she was walking across the parking lot and getting into her car after work?

Those are questions investigators are trying to answer in the shooting of Riva Brown, a Sun Herald newspaper reporter, who is from the Catahoula Community.

Brown, 23, is listed in stable condition at Gulf Coast Community Hospital following surgery for her gunshot wounds, according to spokesperson Kathy Pizzetta.

According to reports, Ya-Sin Shabazz, 23, 410 Washington St., Bay St. Louis, waited in ambush with a 20-gauge shotgun for Brown to leave work. After she was shot, witnesses reportedly said that Shabazz walked aimlessly around the parking lot before he left and was arrested at the corner of DeBuys Road and Lorraine Road by Gulfport Police. The alleged weapon was found in the vehicle Shabazz was driving.

Brown

Shabazz is currently being held in the Harrison County jail under $100,000 bond on the charge of aggravated assault, which is a felony charge and can receive a 30 year sentence.

Brown, a graduate of Hancock North Central High School and the University of Southern Mississippi and Shabazz, a graduate of St. Stanislaus and Yale University, had similar opportunities in life.

They each received a large Knight-Ridder scholarship and both interned at the Sun Herald. Brown began working full-time at the Sun Herald and Shabazz went to work for the

SWAT team wins approval

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis city officials have approved plans for a countywide SWAT team that's been in the making for months.

The proposal now goes to Waveland and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors for action, knitting personnel from three law enforcement agencies into the new team.

Although Bay St. Louis officials had postponed action on the idea earlier this month, it sailed through to approval Tuesday night, with minor adjustments to the pact as originally proposed.

One change will give any of the governments the right to pull out of the pact if the arrangement sours. Otherwise, the unit is authorized to exist through 1995.

Under the plan, the Sheriff's Department and the two city police departments each will put six highly trained officers in the special unit, with one serving as unit commander. The police chiefs, a representative of the Board of Supervisors, and the two mayors will serve as a "control group" overseeing the unit's functions.

The unit is training, says Bay Police Chief Frank McNeil, to deal with worst-case scenarios such as hostage negotiations, bomb threats, barricaded armed outlaws, bank robberies and other nightmarish police emergencies.

As it stands, he said, none of the departments has had the special operations expertise needed to deal quickly and adequately with such situations. "We want to be totally prepared," he said. "We're not doing it to alarm the citizens, but to let the citizens know we're prepared."

The need for such a unit arises from the growth of the cities and the unincorporated area, including the advent of casino operations, the chief said.

While there have been no instances requiring a SWAT team response at Casino Magic or Jubilee, he said, the enormous amounts of money the casinos deal with, and the crowds they attract, open new possibilities for emergencies.

The team has been in training for some 13 to 15 weeks, anticipating launching the special squad. SWAT personnel from New Orleans and Harahan have offered the training, McNeil said, sharing their experiences as well as know-how with the local officers. Other training has been through the FBI.

Each of the governments involved in the team is expected to share costs of the operation - Bay St. Louis officials agreed Tuesday to chip in $1,500.

But much of the start-up costs have been covered through donations of equipment and cash. Casino Magic gave the group some $5,000, McNeil said, and the team acquired a truck through Army surplus supplies. Clothing and other equipment already has been acquired, including some that the officers themselves bought.

The three governments already operate a Narcotics Task Force under a cooperative arrangement. Officials say the task force and SWAT team are working closely together.

Highway improvements endorsed

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis city officials agreed Tuesday on a thick set of proposed improvements to Highway 90, but one councilman said the plans include a costly, wasteful idea.

Councilman James Rutherford said extending the service road on the south side of Highway 90 is "a waste of taxpayers' dollars." He said motorists hardly use the service road on the north side of the highway.

But the rest of council is sold on the idea of connecting the existing south service road from its terminus at Second Street to Dunbar Street. The project would require buying some right-of-way, council was told by city engineer Woody Stieffell.

Council president Charles Scianna seemed surprised by Rutherford's comments, and said the extension project has to be considered in the context of future traffic demands, not necessarily today's traffic patterns.

City officials say the addition of two casinos to Hancock County, restoration of the beachfront, and growth of activity at Stennis Space Center are factors for an existing heavy strain on Highway 90. Traffic already has great difficulty getting onto or crossing the highway, and some motorists have to wait two or more cycles of a traffic light to get through an intersection, officials say.

Last week, council members took a field trip to various intersections in the city limit, and compiled ideas for improvements.

Tuesday, they agreed to get a cost proposal from Brown & Mitchell, engineering, for designing the improvements, in hopes of getting state funds for construction.

The roster of improvements includes a new crossover in the median to access the Post Office, easing the traffic crunch

Zoning commission meets tonight

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission meets at 7 p.m. tonight to gather ideas about long-range planning for Highway 90.

The session, at Bay High School auditorium, is the third in a series of meetings the commission is holding as it drafts a comprehensive development plan for the city.

Officials may talk tonight about possible design standards in the commercial corridor. Such regulations could be used over the years to upgrade the appearance of the highway.

Thoughts for meditation:
A wife of noble character, who can find?

She is worth far more than rubies.

Her children arise and call her blessed;

Her husband also, and he praises her.

at Bouslog Street.

Other proposals include adding turn lanes and shifting median locations to make crossing the highway easier.

City officials already are making improvements to Blue Meadow Road's intersection with the highway, and have plans for easing backups at Main Street and the highway.

Meanwhile, highway officials are preparing to install a new traffic signal at Washington Street.

In other business Tuesday, council agreed to advertise for bids to demolish the structure at 219 Citizen St. Councilman Tad Black said he'd waged a fight since taking office last July to have something done with the property.

At one point, city officials planned to demolish the structure by burning it. Black objected to that, however, because large oak trees on the property would be damaged. Tuesday, he said repeated requests to have the property secured and cleaned up have failed, and he was angered by reluctance on the part of two councilmen to agree to have the structure demolished.

Black said city building inspectors have reported the house is in such disrepair, that it would be dangerous to enter it and try to repair it. Meanwhile, Black said, it is open, with trespassers "traveling in and out," probably for illicit purposes.

Scianna and Rutherford voted against Black's motion to declare the property a public menace and have it demolished. Black and councilmen James Thriffley and Tom Farve voted in favor of the motion.

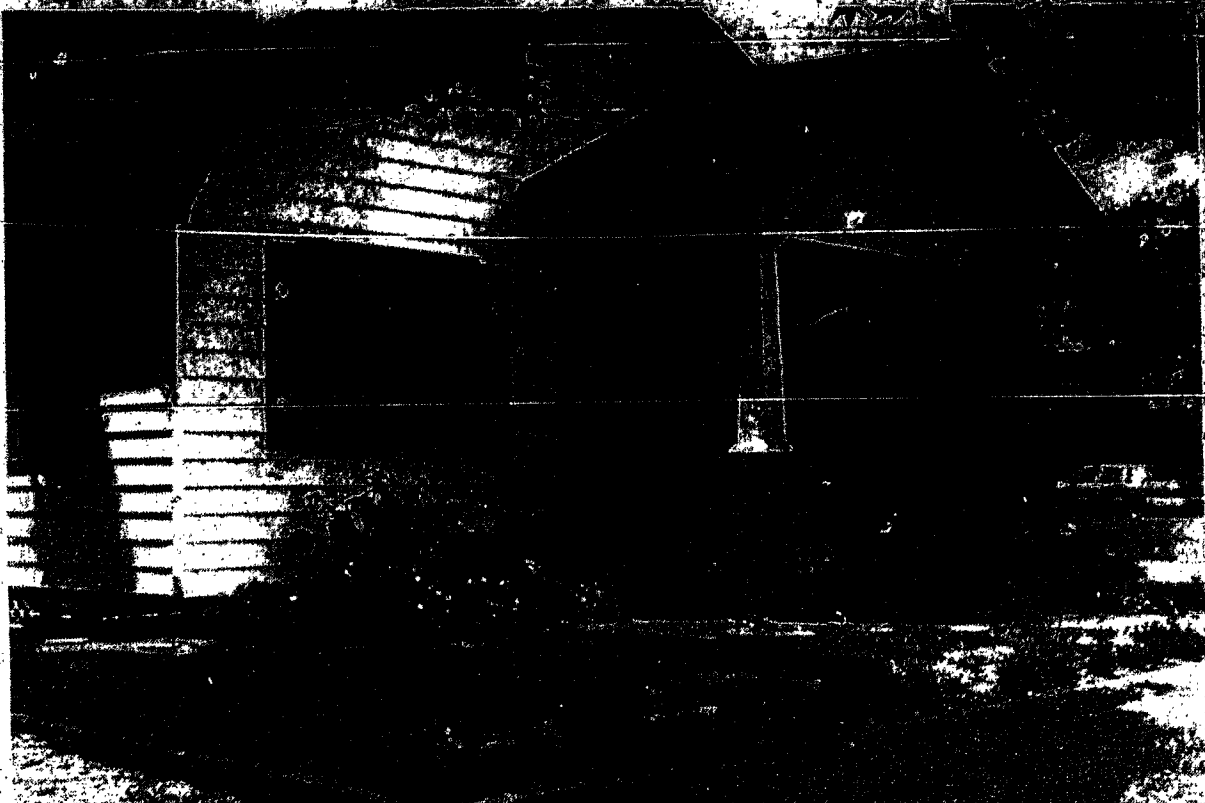

Black also said the city should renew its efforts to enact a new ordinance governing property maintenance. Scianna said such an ordinance would be almost impossible to draft for Bay St. Louis, because it has such a mixture of developed and undeveloped property.

Earlier in the meeting, Candy Strahan urged the city to put some additional trash receptacles on Beach Boulevard, and to hire a city worker to keep the streets clean.

She said downtown merchants have to clean the streets after weekend parties have tossed beer cans and bottles and other refuse into the streets. "This is a city ... The city's responsible" for cleanups, she said.

In other business, Mayor Eddie Favre and city attorney John Scafide told council the city may get an extension on its grant to restore the CSX depot. City purchase of the property has been stalled for months, due to environmental questions and a snag with the title.

Meanwhile, the city is facing a Sept. 30 deadline to have construction plans on hand for its restoration, or lose the federal grant.

Miami Herald, where he was dismissed in September because, according to reports, he had a series of confrontations with co-workers.

After returning from Miami, Shabazz did not seem to be the mild mannered and polite young man that he had before.

"I really don't understand it. I have known him all of his life. We played in little league together. He was always polite and laid-back. He was the type of person that had everything going for him, but didn't flaunt it. He was just a good person," Joseph Gex said.

Shabazz had been trying for months, unsuccessfully, to get a permit, but did not own a gun. Then he tried to obtain clearance through the Gulfport Police Department and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, but they would not give clearance for the purchase.

"When you live in a small community you know about people. He tried to get a clearance for a gun, but we denied it and we also worked with the Gulfport police on this. We did not feel that he was mentally stable. It seemed that he was obsessed with the idea of getting a gun," Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said.

St. Tammany Sheriff's Department stopped a car near Slidell because it had only one headlight. Inside were four juveniles ranging in age from 13 to 16 years of age from Lacombe, La. Also, inside the car was a large amount of beer and candy.

"We have arranged to have them sent here. We have talked to their parents. We picked up the evidence inside the car this morning," Hoda said.

There are no plans for food and beverage facilities at the lodge, and none of the rooms will have kitchens, Rose said. He also said none of the rooms would be used for permanent living quarters for employees.

The final design may include some general open reception area, he said, where hospitality events could be staged.

CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Congratulations are in order for Hancock County's elected officials upon being elected as state presidents. I am referring to Hancock County Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler and Hancock County Tax Collector/Assessor Edward Murtagh.

Both served last year as vice-presidents of their respective organizations.

Both were elected president last week at the respective organization's annual state meeting.

I know both Pam and Eddie will do a great job as presidents, and I wish them the best for the state in the coming year, as they do for the residents of Hancock County in their respective offices.

One of our subscribers told me Friday night she knew one of my pet peeves was automobiles with only one headlight operational.

She then went on to tell me about how she had a pet peeve of her own. This she said are persons who park their automobiles across sidewalks.

Recently the City of Bay St. Louis installed several sidewalks, which were really needed on several streets.

On my way to work Saturday morning I thought I would check her pet peeve out and made a round on DeMontluzin Avenue.

There were three autos parked across the new sidewalk.

Persons walking on the sidewalk, would have to exit three times into the street before they made the block.

Thought I would just mention the fact there are others out there with legitimate pet peeves.

While on the subject of parking, I must report something I have really been witnessing quiet frequently.

How is it that there are those who park in handicapped spaces, jump out of their vehicles and race into a store?

The vehicles' operators appear to be in top physical shape, so one knows they are not physically handicapped. Someone told me they may be a bit mentally handicapped, that may be the problem, but if it is, I ask this question, should they then be driving a vehicle?

Store owners go through a lot of trouble in following the law in providing designated handicapped parking for those who are legally handicapped.

There are laws to provide handicapped parking, and I am awaiting the day when some citations will be issued to those who abuse the law.

I guess this is pick on motorist column week. Well, here is another observation I have made during the past week.

Motorists traveling west on the Bay St. Louis bridge have a turn signal to make a left at on Beach Boulevard. I saw two drivers make that left turn on a red signal.

I said to myself each time, I sure wish a patrolman would be in the area.

We have had so many accidents at this busy intersection, and persons running a red light have helped cause some.

Traffic signals are installed for specific reasons and should be observed by all motorists.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Current poll gives Gov. Kirk Fordice big edge

If the recent gubernatorial polls are truly indicative of how the 1995 Mississippi governor's race is going to come out, the Kirk Fordice is a cinch to be reelected.

Ironically, however, if a poll made at this same stage before the 1991 governor's election was an accurate prediction of the future, then Gov. Ray Mabus would still be governor.

Recently I happened to run across the Mississippi State University Social Science Center's Statewide poll made April 3, 1990 on voter attitude to Mabus' chances of being reelected against potential opposition at the time. The poll showed Mabus would win virtually hands down.

Against Republican Jack Reed of Tupelo, the man he narrowly defeated in 1987, Mabus came out a solid winner in the 1991 poll. The figures were 54.7 percent for Mabus to 37.6 percent for Reed with only about 7 percent undecided.

The next potentially strongest Republican candidate was thought to be State Auditor Pete Johnson, a relatively well-known public figure. The name Kirk Fordice wasn't even on the radar screen at the time and didn't figure into the poll.

A matchup of Mabus vs. Johnson did show the incumbent governor winning by a 62 to 26 percent margin.

As is known now from what actually transpired that year, Reed decided not to run for governor and Johnson did run. But he narrowly lost the GOP nomination to Fordice, an unknown businessman from Vicksburg. Fordice then surprised most people by defeating Mabus in a low-turnout general election.

Significantly, Mabus was shown in the MSU poll to be favored by white voters by 58 to 28 percent over Johnson and evenly split 47 to 47 percent against Reed. Mabus was favored by a wide margin among black voters over both men.

In reality it was the loss of the white votes that almost cost Mabus' defeat against Reed in 1987 race and spelled doom against Fordice in 1991. Mabus was believed to have gotten only 35 percent of the white vote in 1987 and less than that in the 1991 race against Fordice.

A major factor in his loss to Fordice was the dropoff in total black votes cast for Mabus in 1991. However, it was not that more blacks decided to vote for Fordice than Reed, but that they didn't vote at all.

In April, 1991 former Gov. Bill Allain was thought to be the major possible foe for Mabus' Democratic renomination. The MSU poll showed Mabus whipping Allain rather handily by a 64 to 26 percent margin.

Allain, of course, did not run for the Democratic nomination, but Wayne Dowdy, the former 4th District Congressman did. Mabus, however, won in a surprisingly close race.

This past April, the MSU pollsters tested how Fordice stands against the potential field in the 1995 general election. Chiefly, the poll matched him up against Secretary of State Dick Mopus, the likely Democratic challenger. Fordice came off the winner in that trial heat by a margin of 51 to 39 percent with 10 percent undecided.

Fordice had his own poll run in late April by Republican pollster Verne Kennedy which showed him almost 28 points ahead of Mopus in the 1995 election were being held now. The Fordice camp, of course, was quite elated and even started a false rumor that Mopus was thinking of pulling out of the next governor's race.

Since World War II, amazingly, not one candidate for governor who was the favorite 18 months before the election has won. The biggest upset came in 1971 when then-Lt. Gov. Charles Sullivan was such an overwhelming favorite long before the election that it seemed pointless to even have a vote. History records, however, that Sullivan was not elected and Bill Waller, a total long shot, was.

Of course there is one new quotient in Mississippi gubernatorial politics in recent years — an incumbent can seek reelection. Mabus was the first to try it in 1991 and lost.

What does history hold for Kirk Fordice?

Mississippi Economic Council

Chamber handling petitions to reduce legislature's size

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is the newest distribution point for petitions being collected to reduce the size of Mississippi's legislature.

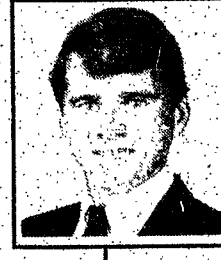

Voters can visit the chamber office, located at 412 Hwy. 90, Suite 6 in Bay St. Louis, during regular business hours to sign a petition or to obtain petitions to gather signatures from other registered voters.

The local chamber is joining several other state chamber organizations which are assisting the Mississippi Economic Council in the petition drive by making the petitions available to voters. MEC is managing the statewide campaign as part of an ongoing effort to reduce government size and improve government efficiency.

Mississippi currently has one of the largest legislatures in the United States with 174 members. That number gives the state a larger legislature than all its neighboring states and even California, which has 120 legislators.

An independent poll conducted by MEC shows that

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Taylor aims to reduce unfunded federal mandates

A while back, I visited with the Pearl River Board of Supervisors to talk about several federal and local issues affecting the Pearl River County area.

During the course of our meeting our discussion turned to federal regulations that are unaccompanied by money to carry the regulations out, commonly known as unfunded mandates.

Most supervisors made it very clear that Pearl River isn't the only county in Mississippi that has experienced difficulty making ends meet.

Many local and state leaders argue costly federal mandates take away funds from much-needed local services. As a former councilman and state senator I am in total agreement.

I think states, cities and counties should be given the freedom to determine what type of benefits that they will provide. After all, we don't pay California taxes in Mississippi. We don't pay New York taxes in Mississippi. We pay Mississippi taxes. And for Mississippi taxes I think we need the freedom to provide Mississippi-type services.

The freedom that Pearl River's supervisors are seeking from unfunded mandates may soon become reality, however. While there are a handful of unfunded federal mandate bills making their way through the legislative process, it is more of a movement in Congress than one bill that is fueling the change.

It seems as if every bill that comes to the House floor for a vote gets an amendment tacked onto it dealing with unfunded federal mandates.

I am pleased to see this trend in Congress that often requires the Congressional Budget Office to provide cost estimates of any legislation that would impose an unfunded federal mandate.

I think that it is very important that the federal government give our local elected officials, who are elected by the people they represent, the freedom to serve them without having to cope with one federal mandate after another.

Incidentally, forcing mandates on cities, counties and states also increases the cost of running the federal government. To use an example, the federal government must find somewhere close to three dollars for every one dollar Mississippi provides for Medicare because of federal mandates.

It is very easy to see the perpetual problem that persists. All federal mandates end up costing everyone all the way up the ladder.

So it is obvious that we must give government at every level, from county government to the federal government, the freedom to control costs if we really want to balance the federal government.

Cochran announces funding for military projects

The Senate Appropriations Committee has approved $22 million for military construction projects in Mississippi, Senator Thad Cochran announced.

The military construction bill includes $3.2 million for a maintenance support facility for the T-1 Jayhawk aircraft at Columbus Air Force Base, over $10 million for training facilities at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, and $7.55 million for National Guard training facilities and equipment at Gulfport.

MEC is working to put the measure to a vote in the 1995 gubernatorial election using the state's initiative and referendum law. The law

"These funds are necessary to upgrade our bases and facilities to provide the training required by our armed forces personnel," Cochran said.

"We are fortunate to have these important bases in our state, and we are pleased the Senate Appropriations Committee has responded to our request to make these investments to keep them up-to-date," he added.

The Senate is expected to take up the bill within the next few days.

requires that a total of 85,000 signatures be obtained from registered voters statewide to place an issue on the ballot. The number must be divided evenly among Mississippi's five federal congressional districts.

Safety tips for traveling with children

Before loading the kids for that next trip — whether across town or country — parents should remember to follow several basic safety rules.

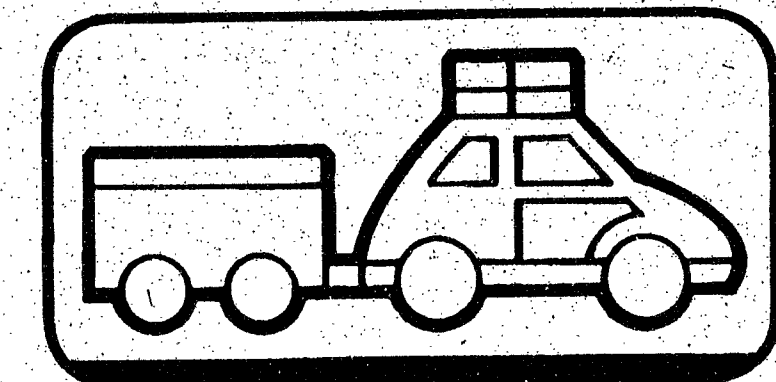

Dr. Louise Davis, child and family development consultant with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service at Mississippi State University, says there are four primary rules to follow:

- Mississippi law requires safety belts for all passengers in the front seat, regardless of age, and children 4 years and younger must be in a federally approved child-restraint device.

- Leaving a child unattended in a parked car is dangerous.

- "Kids can start the car and set it in motion, or then open the door and wander off," Davis says. "Also, summer weather can heat up parked cars to 130 degrees or higher, even in the shade. These temperatures can be fatal to children."

- If the drive will include outdoor activity, include a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of 15 or higher. "Children burn easily under intense rays."

- Take along a first-aid kit that contains bandages, disinfectant, petroleum jelly, Tylenol or a substitute, and first-aid cream. The kit also should contain information on important family medical histories and the family physician's name and telephone number.

"If you're going on a long drive, remember that most children become bored when confined for a long period of time," Davis says. "For your sanity and theirs, take along fun activities or games to play that will occupy their time."

For long trips, Davis suggests several essentials: boxes of juice and box holders to prevent spills; boxes of fruits, along with a large bag of the child's favorite cereal; napkins, pre-moistened towelettes and travel tissues; plastic bags for trash or soiled diapers; and a variety of appropriate-age toys.

"Traveling with children has its rewards and challenges and doesn't have to be taxing," she says.

Attorney general announces consumer protection number

Attorney General Mike Moore announced a toll-free number for his Consumer Protection Division. Consumers wanting to contact the Attorney General's Office with consumer questions or complaints may now call 1-800-281-4418 Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The call is free within Mississippi. Residents in the Jackson area are urged to use the commercial number of (601) 359-4230.

"The majority of our consumer calls come from the Jackson-metro area. This toll-free number will make this office equally accessible to all areas of the state. We hope it will encourage more people to call and report consumer fraud," said Leslie Staehle, special assistant attorney general and director of the Office of Consumer Protection.

Consumer Protection handles complaints of unfair and deceptive trade practices across the state. Consumers are encouraged to call the office to inquire about complaints against companies before doing business with them.

Consumer Protection is also responsible for educating consumers regarding their rights and responsibilities in business transactions. Civic groups who desire further information on this are encouraged to contact this office.

IN AND AROUND DIAMONDHEAD

By Margaret Williamson

AND THEY'RE OFF

We welcome aboard a brand new president, officers and board of directors for the Diamondhead POA, and now with this change, new faces, new ideas, etc. that finally we seem to be on the right course and heading in the right direction. We congratulate Jim Van Norman and his board and wish them well as they take over the giant task of running Diamondhead for the benefit of all.

DIAMONDHEAD LIONS

President Howard Peters, his wife Betty, Michael Davis, Henry Johnston, Billie Jean Stepanek and Lola Mullinix, all representing the Diamondhead Lions Club, returned Sunday evening from the Lions international convention in Phoenix, Ariz. which was July 12-15.

This is the largest service organization in the world, and 40,000 Lions attended the third-largest convention in Phoenix.

"Sight First" was the largest project of Lions Clubs this past year. Judge Pat Patterson from Hattiesburg was elected third vice president.

About 400 Lions from Mississippi attended the convention. Please remember that there is a drop-off box at LL Ltd. and Diamondhead Super Market for your used glasses, cases and hearing aids.

If you'd like to join the Diamondhead Lions Club, please call Howard Peters at 255-3753.

MORE COMMUNITY SERVICES

We applaud Dottie Council with Merchants Bank and Jennifer Gonzales of Century 21 for being chosen Rotarians of the Year from the Diamondhead Rotary Club.

We're sure that for all the good things the Rotary Club does, that these young ladies have proved worthy of this nice honor.

Congratulations to the new officers and directors chosen for the year 1994-95:

President Gary Wiley, vice president Alecia Gardner, secretary Ethel LeBreton, treasurer Patrick Wild, sergeant-at-arms Tony Esau. Keep up the good works, everyone.

THE SECRET'S OUT

We are your neighbors, and we hope we're your friends. We're "The Diamondhead Players," and we'll be at the country club for dinner and our show, "Nun for the Money," written by New Orleans' own Rene Dufour and directed by Diamondhead's own Ben Doss.

The dates are Aug. 11 and 12. Dinner is at 7 p.m., the show at 8. Deadline for reservations and tickets at $15 per person is Aug. 6 at 5 p.m. Call 255-1317 or 255-9846 for tickets. There will be no tickets at the door.

BEAUTIFUL GARDEN

wonderful friendship garden, bird house village and other significant mementos, have been brought to all Sea Coast Echo readers' attention in last Thursday's edition. The pictures are great, but you really have to see it to believe it, and Nina welcomes friends and folks to stop by and view her mini-Bellingrath.

Everywhere you look is a profusion of different blooms in different colors, and she tries to have something blooming throughout the year's seasons, which is quite a task.

This true "Southern Belle" is so proud and happy with her lovely Mississippi garden that she's glad to share some "green thumb" secrets, too.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT

Tickets are $3 adult, $1 child for the first Diamondhead's Kids Theatre production at 7 tonight and again tomorrow, Friday, at 7 p.m. at the country club.

Diamondhead POA has new officers

Come out and see some of our talented youngsters in "The Rehearsal." Hope to see you there.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

Man often becomes what he believes himself to be. If I keep on saying to myself that I cannot do a certain thing, it is possible that I may end by really becoming incapable of doing it.

On the contrary, if I have the belief that I can do it, I shall surely acquire the capacity to do it even if I may not have it at the beginning.

Believe in yourself, and have a safe and happy week. Dry, too, maybe?

P.S. Rain, rain go away!

Camp Rainbow for young cancer patients

The American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division Inc. will conduct its 11th annual Camp Rainbow August 14-17.

This special camp for pediatric cancer patients was first conducted in 1984 on the Strong River in Pinola, Miss. Many of these children had never had the opportunity to enjoy the traditional fun of summer camp as most camps do not accept pediatric cancer patients for fear of not being prepared to meet their special needs.

Thirty-eight campers attended this first camp, along with a contingent of volunteers, including medical staff, who saw that there was no disruption of chemotherapy or other treatment necessary for the campers.

The American Cancer Society's objective is to provide a fun-filled four-day camping experience in a loving and caring environment which affords each camper the opportunity to share the good times and camaraderie of camp life with fellow campers.

Camp Rainbow also allows the family a well-deserved rest knowing that their children are in the capable and trusted hands of qualified pediatric doctors and nurses as well as trained camp counselors.

Each year Camp Rainbow offers new and exciting activities. In past years, activities have included clowns, hot air balloon rides, swimming, tennis, horseback riding, arts and crafts, fishing, canoeing and much, much more.

Camp Rainbow is funded by contributions made to the Mississippi Division of the American Cancer Society and is free of charge to all participants.

Since 1984 over 400 campers have attended Camp Rainbow, and at its most recent camp in 1993 more than 80 children attended.

This along with the required number of counselors and medical staff saw a record 125 participants.

If you are interested in knowing more about Camp Rainbow, if you know a child who might like to attend, or if you are interested in supporting Camp Rainbow, please call the American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division Inc. at 1-800-ACS-2345 or (601) 362-8874.

Planting for fall...

July is pumpkin planting season

By Larry L. Waldrop
Mississippi Communications
 July's hot summer days may seem like a strange tie to prepare for Halloween, but these days are important for pumpkin growers.

Dr. Milo Burnham, extension horticulturist at Mississippi State University, said to have home-grown pumpkins for Halloween, gardeners must plant within the first three weeks of July.

"If you plant much later than this, you may be too late for Halloween, but if you plant much earlier, you may have a storage problem," Burnham said.

"Home gardeners should base their pumpkin seed selection on what they want — whether it's giant pumpkins, small decorative pumpkins or something unusual."

When home garden space is limited, gardeners should keep vine size in mind when selecting a pumpkin variety.

"Look for varieties with semi-bush or short vines for small gardens — these usually are available for different sizes of pumpkins," Burnham said.

"Seed availability varies, so check local seed and feed stores, garden centers, grocery stores and catalogs for different types."

"Some of the more unusual pumpkin varieties include Baby Boo and Lumina, which produce white pumpkins; Atlantic Giant, which produces pumpkins that can weigh more than 600 pounds; and Triple Treat, which produces pumpkins suitable for both pies and jack o'lanterns and hullless seed for roasting."

Even though pumpkin planting may be a hobby for some gardeners, the plants require as much attention as the more "serious" garden plants.

"Even the smaller varieties take up a lot of space, and they require a lot of water, since pumpkins mainly consist of water," Burnham said. "They grow best in well-drained soils and require fertilizer."

Common diseases of pumpkin plants include powdery mildew, which appears as a grayish mold on the leaves' surface, and downy mildew, which appears as yellow or brown spots on the leaves.

Burnham recommended using a fungicide containing bayleton for problems with powdery mildew, and a fungicide with chlorothalonil or mancozeb for downy mildew.

"Insect problems for pumpkins appear after mid-July and include squash bug and cucumber beetles," Burnham said.

"When spraying for these pests while the vines are blooming, remember that pumpkins are insect pollinated — so spray in the late afternoon when bees are not active."

Semi bush pumpkin varieties, ranging from small to medium size, include Sugar Treat, Jack-B-Quick, Trick-Or-Treat, Big Autumn, Frosty and Spirit.

Water Fun in-ground and above-ground pools and spas and supplies relating to those items. The business has been situated at its present location, at 525 Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis, for about a year.

Owner Romy Yavuzer has extensive training and seven years of experience in the sales and service of pools and spas.

He and his wife Claire and two employees maintain the business. The Yavuzers not only install pools, they service and repair them. The couple moved here from New Orleans with their two young children and found a "big demand" for their merchandise and services, Romy said.

Their prices are very competitive with others in the area. Romy said their prices can't be beat and they offer service after the sale.

Water Fun serves customers within a 100-mile radius of Bay St. Louis, including New Orleans and Mobile, Ala.

The owners keep of new trends in pools and spas and training sessions during their off months in the winter time.

They keep several spas in stock because customers can't always tell what they look from pictures in brochures and catalogs, Romy said.

Romy said he was very pleased with the decision to move his pool and spa business to this area because the local people are "so easy to get along with."

BAY ST. LOUIS

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The Bay St. Louis girls softball league has not one, not two, not three, but four state championships. That's right, it's not a typo. We have four state champions.

The 9 & 10 year olds, the Little League (11 & 12 year olds), the Senior League (13-15 year olds), and the Big League (16-18 year olds) all went through the tournament undefeated.

Wants to compete in Mr. Mississippi

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

Charles Hawkins, of Bay St. Louis, is set for competition in the Mr. Mississippi Bodybuilding Championships held on July 23 in Jackson.

The competition is being held at the Jackson Auditorium.

Hawkins won the competition in both 1988 and 1989 but has since been out of competition with a broken shoulder.

Hawkins commented, "I have been training for about 2 1/2 to 3 hours per day. I have been on a four-month diet where I have lost close to 34 pounds and my body fat is down to 2.5%."

Hawkins continued, "I hope to lose some more weight in the future because I am using this competition to warm up for the National Championships that are being held in Orlando on October 21-22."

Hawkins, who competes in the light heavyweight division, has recently won the Southern Nationals Bodybuilding competition and placed second in the Southern Classic Bodybuilding competition.

Favre re-signs for $19 million

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

Brett Favre, quarterback of the Green Bay Packers, re-signed a five-year contract with the team worth a reported $19 million.

Favre is a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi and Hancock North Central. He was named to the Pro Bowl in 1992 and put some good numbers last year that provoked the Packers to re-sign him.

Ron Wolf, the Packers' executive vice-president stated, "He is still one of the top three QBs in the NFC."

Favre commented on his signing, "I am glad to know that I will be here for five more years. I believe that this is the team to beat the next few years."

Wolf stated that re-signing Favre was a key to the Packers' future. Last year, Favre completed 318 of 522 passes. He rates first in Packer history in passing accuracy at 62.4 percent, passing up Bart Starr's 57.4 percent.

Bill Bates, auction chairman, with one of the racing homing pigeons featured in Saturday's sale.

Pigeon Club to host benefit

There will be a flurry of feathered activity Saturday at the National Guard Armory when the Hancock County Racing Pigeon Club hosts a benefit auction for club member Glen Estapa.

Besides pedigreed racing pigeons, there will be supplies, videos and other sport-related items to be auctioned.

James Casey, a nationally-respected auctioneer and grader of racing homing pigeons, has volunteered his time to assist the club with the sale.

Racing pigeon fanciers from across the Gulf South are expected for the event, which begins at 11 a.m. with the auction starting promptly at 2 p.m.

There is no admission. The public is invited to meet the people involved in the sport and to learn about these "thoroughbreds of the sky."

Food and refreshments will be available.

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Registration will be held on Saturday for the Bay Youth Basketball Association's three-on-three basketball tournament.

"This tournament is open to area boys ages 9 through 16; and girls ages 11 through 16," Robert Williams, league director said.

"Saturday's registration will be from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Martin Luther King Park, Washington St., Bay St. Louis," Williams added. The boys will be grouped ages 9 and 10; 11 and 12; 13 and 14; and 15 and 16.

Girls will be grouped at 11 and 12; 13 and 14; and 15 and 16.

There will be a registration fee of $15 per three-member team.

"The tournament will be played at a later date, and number of teams will depend upon the number of registrants," Williams said.

There will be a first, second and third place trophy in each division.

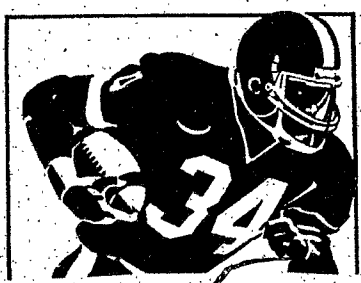

Entry fees from the tournament will be used to help pay officials for the regular Bay Youth Basketball Program which will begin in November.

The three-on-three games are to be played at the Martin Luther King Park, and more information will be available at registration Saturday, Williams stated.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

I attended the American Sportfishing Association convention in Dallas last week. The Turtle thought he died and gone to heaven. You just flat can't believe the amount of fishing stuff they had under one roof in that place.

I mean we're talking over two square blocks of nothing but fishing tackle and equipment. I had to keep a handkerchief to my mouth constantly to keep the drooling from becoming too embarrassing.

Even one in 1,000's of lures that were on display really worked, the fish are in BIG trouble.

Some of the newer items on display were Teflon-coated fish hooks, steel sinkers, and chemicals to keep fish and bait alive longer.

The steel sinkers are in response to the proposed regulations by environmental groups to ban lead sinkers. Steel sinkers are touted as: being longer lasting than lead; retain their shape better than lead; have improved snag resistance; paint better than lead; produce louder clicking sound during use; competitive priced to lead.

On the price issue I was told a packet of steel sinkers will only cost a few cents more than a similar packet of lead sinkers. Maybe steel sinkers can come in flavors that birds don't like.

Spent a good deal of time talking with the Sure-Life Fish Care Products Co. folks of Seguin, Texas. They claim their products are "formulated by both a scientist and a fisherman for those who fish."

One of their products has the unique name of "Please Release Me." It is a catch-and-release chemical you place on your hands or in your live bait well. Apparently this stuff is both a fish tranquilizer and possesses medicinal properties. The manufacturer claims to: Calms your catch; Replaces slime coat; Helps heal hook wounds. I wonder if it is habit forming for the fish?

Another product is called "Pogey-Saver." All of us know how hard it is to keep pogey alive, so if this stuff works, it would be a boon. Pogey-Saver is a water conditioner developed specifically for pogey.

The manufacturer claims it: Conditions saltwater; Keeps bait alive and frisky; Stimulates a natural slime coat; Reduces surface tension for better oxygen transfer; Removes chlorine from melting ice (never thought of that). It comes in sizes from a two-ounce bottle which treats 50 gallons, to a 36-pound bucket which treats 14,400 gallons. Now that is a big bait bucket.

They have a chemical for shrimp which removes surface foam in addition to all of the things the Pogey-Saver does.

The most unique and potentially useful item for our area is a product called Shrimp-Buddies. This totally unique and one-of-a-kind product is actually two products in one. It contains both a grey tablet, which is an oxygen tablet, and a green tablet which is a water conditioner tablet.

The grey tablet bubbles all day long, releasing oxygen into the water. The green tablet dissolves fast and removes harmful chemicals like chlorine and heavy metals, while adding electrolytes which are said to keep your shrimp "frisky."

This stuff comes in packages that are easier to handle than the product that treats 14,400 gallons. It comes in packages that treat 1 to 2 gallons at a time.

Quote a bit of discussion at the ASA convention was centered on why the Department of Interior and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service decided to turn away from traditional management of fish and game toward biodiversity and endangered species work.

The sportfishing industry says fishing programs "are being gored by the redirection steered by the Clinton Administration and Congress."

Traditionally, fish and wildlife management for both the federal government and state governments are supported by money generated in license fees, tags, wildlife stamp sales, excise taxes and general economic activity.

Non-game, endangered species, and biodiversity programs are money drains that generate no secondary funding.

Some suggest that by diverting funding away from programs that generate money, the Department of Interior — under its new direction — is slowly killing the goose that continues to lay golden eggs.

So far this year grants and aid to sportfish projects have shrunk from $6 million to $2.25 million.

The USFWS has steadfastly refused to explain where the $3.75 million of the fund went or if it was being used appropriately — as required by law — on fisheries programs. They have stated that the endangered species programs are underfunded.

Legislation passed this year relating to non-indigenous species could lead to less stocking of gamefish or even the eradication of sport fishing if large mouth bass, brown trout or stripers were not native to an area and where found to be impacting the native resource.

Non-indigenous species would include most game fish in this country. This legislation can stop stocking, convert the hatcheries to endangered species, and then move to eradicate non-native species such as bluegill, bass or trout.

This would mean no more Florida bass could be stocked in Mississippi or anywhere else but where they are native in Florida waters.

As an example of where gamefish hatcheries have been displaced is already happening. The Willow Beach National Fish Hatchery near Las Vegas was forced to raise 50% fewer rainbow trout this year so more money could be devoted to raising endangered species. 10,000 endangered razorback suckers were to be raised in the hatcheries.

Sportfishermen and hunters are two of the very few groups who have ever requested they be taxed to support their activities. The excise taxes on fishing tackle alone amounts to more than $200 million annually.

It has been suggested to the environmentalists that they tax their own equipment and supplies to support their endeavors.

An excise tax on bird seed, binoculars, hiking boots, back packing equipment and mountain bikes, dedicated to funding non-game, endangered species, and biodiversity programs would be one answer.

The bird seed business alone is greater than the fishing tackle business. Any hint of such a tax program has been vehemently opposed in its infancy and has been killed before they could become formal legislative proposals.

Now hunters and fishermen are paying the whole share for wildlife agencies, and they are becoming increasingly angry that their funds are being diverted to use by groups that refuse to pay their own way but want to use sportsmen self-imposed tax dollars to the detriment of the sportsmen who pay the tax.

This week's wonderful wise words: Your senators and representatives are just a 29-cent stamp away.

What country is Dallas, Turtle?

Mississippi Day

There is a Bay Connection in the Big Apple. Recently, Mississippi Day in New York City's Central Park attracted Cuevas family members from throughout the nation. From left, Jennifer and husband Milton Cuevas II of Noblesville, Ind.; Stephen Cuevas, Bay St. Louis; Irv Cuevas, Los Angeles, and his son Jason, a Loyola, New Orleans student. The annual picnic draws hundreds of Mississippi natives and relatives who reside in or have ties to the New York area. The outing features "down home" cooking, entertainment, and music. A similar fest is held each summer in Los Angeles. The Cuevas's were in the New York area for the June 17 wedding of Sal Ferraro and Kay Cuevas, daughter of Bay native Milton J. Cuevas of Washington Township, N.J.

Kergosien, Ladner are State grads

Nearly 900 Mississippi State University students are candidates for degrees at the conclusion of the 1994 summer semester.

Graduates will formally receive diplomas Aug. 6 at Humphrey Coliseum. The commencement program begins at 10 a.m.

President Donald W. Zacharias will deliver the commencement address. The university's 15th chief executive, he has led the institution since 1985.

Local graduates include John Laurent Kergosien, of Bay St. Louis, BS, College of Engineering, and Renee Leigh Ladner of Bay St. Louis, BA, College of Arts and Sciences.

New scholarship established at Pearl River

Pearl River Community College's 16-member governing board will fund a student scholarship beginning this fall semester.

Board of trustees member Jackanell Smith of Picayune, who represents Pearl River County, suggested the scholarship at the June meeting. Board members liked the idea and voted unanimously to individually fund the scholarship.

"This is a worthy gesture on your part," said president Ted Alexander. "It could mean the difference in a deserving student attending college."

The PRCC Scholarship Committee will prepare guidelines and requirements for the board's approval. The scholarship recipient will receive $320 per semester for one year. PRCC's tuition is $425 per semester.

The individual members will fund the Board Scholarship with private funds through the PRCC Development Foundation.

Cinderella Tot

Alexa Gabrielle Smith, daughter of James and Alison Smith of Bay St. Louis, was recently chosen as Cinderella Tot for the Gulf Coast area. Alexa further competed in the statewide pageant held in Ellisville. She was selected as the overall top personality winner in her division. The award is determined by the contestant's personal interview and onstage interview during the pageant.
